AN OLD MAID'S ADVICE

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Her mother named her Cynthia when she was three days old and said she hoped the little darling wouldn't grow up to fall in love and become a wife and mother.

The little darling didn't. When she was a year old she hadn't smiled yet. When the doctor was appealed to as to what ailed her he replied:

"Her name gave her a shock and soured her disposition."

"But will she die young?" was asked. "Not by a jugful! She is cut out for an old maid, and she will live as long as there is anything that she can meddle with and stir up trouble."

She had got to be thirty-five years old when an event happened. Up to this time they had been incidents and occurrences. This was an event to be spelled with a big "E."

Little Mrs. Larkins was the bride of a year. She had married a nice young man, and the home was a happy one. One day the husband answered her in an impatient way, and soon after he had gone to business Cynthia dropped in to find the wife in tears. The old maid looked her 'chops. Here was a bouquet of gossip for her. What was the matter?

"It's—It's Henry!" "Ah-ha! I said so when you were married. What's he done?"

"I wanted just a card of books and eyes, and he said he couldn't be bothered with such trifles."

"Well, that's the beginning of the end. In six months there will be a separation."

"Oh, don't say that. Henry was bothered about something and gave me an impatient answer. Maybe he will even bring the books and eyes when he comes."

"Lucy Larkins, prepare yourself and don't be deceived! I can't stop longer today, but I will come in tomorrow and tell you what you must do. Unless you want to lose your husband, this thing must be nipped in the bud."

"Why, Cynthia, how you frighten me!" exclaimed the wife.

Mr. Larkins had loaned a sum of money to be repaid at a certain date. When the date arrived the money was not forthcoming. Therefore he was upset.

If Mr. Larkins had owned up about the money the skies would have cleared in five minutes. If Mrs. Larkins had mentioned that the old maid was seeking to make trouble there would have been an explanation. As it was, when Cynthia called next day she found a victim ready for her.

"Did he bring the books and eyes?" she asked. "No."

"Good! We will now proceed to show that young man a few things to open his eyes. We will let him understand that if he is tired of you you are ditto."

"But I can't believe he is tired of me!" was protested.

There was plain talk on the one side and tears and sobs on the other, and at length the wife was won over, and the old maid left the house saying:

"Remember that I flunk out of you will lose Henry. All you have to do is to keep quiet till I give the word."

Just about that hour the money that Mr. Larkins was anxious about was paid over, and he came home an hour ahead of time to tell the good news and make his apologies.

"Oh, Lucy, dear!" he called as he entered the house.

No Lucy dear. Then came the note left for him propounded against the clock.

"I have discovered that you no longer love me, and you will never see me again!" it read.

Mr. Larkins jumped two feet high. His heart choked him. His knees wobbled. The room whirled round and round with him. In a minute more he was out of the house calling an alarm.

"Lucy has committed suicide! Come on to the river!"

The river was at its lowest stage, and a child could have crossed it. Lucy's bedraggled body was not to be seen. There was a mud turtle or two sailing up or down, but no Lucy.

There were orchards and groves, and all night long men were searching. They found no trace of the missing wife, and the next day the ground was covered again with even more care. The result was the same.

As night came down for the second time a score of men gathered at the Larkins home to sympathize, console and plan anew. Henry Larkins was in tears and the others on the verge when in walked Lucy. She had come downstairs from the garret, where she had been in hiding in compliance with Miss Cynthia's orders. She had agreed to stay up there at least three days, but couldn't stand the strain.

Her story was told, explanations made, and after a time of rejoicing Squire Miller rapped for order and said:

"Gentlemen, this meeting has a pleasant duty to perform. Let us perform it."

Twenty men filed out and down the street and stopped at the house where the old maid made her home. She squealed and kicked and scratched, but she was borne to the river and ducked till she did not get her breath before high noon next day. No arrests; no suits for damages. She felt that she deserved the dose.

MOTIONS OF PLANTS.

Some Forms of Vegetable Life Have the Power of Choice.

One of the chief distinctions between vegetable and animal life is that animals have power of choice and of voluntary motion, while vegetables and plants grow only mechanically by natural law. But the microscope seems to show that many vegetable forms can move as easily as can animals.

There is a plant called Volvox globator, so minute that millions of it could be put in a wineglass, which is seen to whirl like a top across the field of the microscope. Some plants found in our ponds, which are still more minute, move habitually, as with an apparent purpose.

Darwin, who gave closer study than any other naturalist to climbing plants, stated that these seemed to exercise the liberty of choice. Their tendrils, in climbing over pieces of wood with holes, will try one hole after another until they find one that pleases them. He saw one tendril withdraw itself after having located itself in a hole for thirty-six hours.

Other plants will run a long way over the ground, refusing to climb the trees in their path until they come to a peculiar species of tree, to which they at once cling.—Harper's Weekly.

A Pond on the Farm.

Why not build a good pond on the farm? The government will stock it with fish; it will furnish water for your stock the year round by installing pipes and hydrants to keep the water cool and sanitary, and when winter comes it will furnish a fine place for the amusement of the young folks. Then it will supply the material for the ice crop to store away for summer use.—Successful Farming.

Giving Her a Job.

Mrs. Strongmud—Our society has appointed me chairman of a committee whose object is to try to bring about a reduction in rents. Strongmud—I'm glad to hear it, my dear. You can begin at once on my trousers.—London Tit-Bits.

TWO CAMPS SEPARATE

Senate Currency Committee Meets in Two Separate Sections

HOPE FOR CURRENCY REPORT ON MONDAY

Committee Will Have a Joint Meeting To-morrow to Discuss Reports

Washington, Nov. 14.—The two wings of the Senate banking and currency committee yesterday worked steadily preparing separate currency bills to be presented to the Senate.

Senator Owen and five Democratic members of the committee struggled to agree on a bill that would suit the president in Senator Hollis' room, while in the regular committee room, Senator Hitchcock and five Republicans opposed to the administration measure were building a bill based on amendments the committee had already adopted.

A report on the bill as early as Monday is strongly indicated. The Democratic six are working on the details of the bill and will complete their work to-day, they say, and lay the results of their labor before the meeting of the full committee on Saturday.

When the full membership met yesterday adjournment was promptly taken at the request of the Democratic members until Saturday in furtherance of this programme. It is the understanding that there will be a report unanimously signed by the members of the committee to the Senate early next week on the bill in which probably there will be concurrence as to everything except four fundamental matters.

The number of regional banks, Democrats advocating eight and Republicans recommending more than four; stock ownership, the Democrats advocating ownership by the member banks and the Republicans insisting on public ownership; stock control, the Democrats standing for the House bill, which gives the member banks a controlling voice in the regional reserve associations and their branches, the Republicans urging public control, and the question of whether gold shall be retained as the sole money for reserves and redemption and "lawful money" eliminated. On this the Democrats claim they have copied the German plan of requiring gold for the reserves and making the gold the money of final redemption at the treasury department, but to allow the redemption of notes in "lawful money" when presented at the regional reserves or their branches.

In the "Interesting People" department of the November American Magazine, Kathleen Norris writes an article about William I. Scandlin, the blind president of the Blind Men's club of New York—an author, lecturer, and successful business man. Mr. Scandlin has been blind for six years. Twelve years ago, in early middle life, he was told that he had six years in which to prepare for blindness. He took up the task as cheerfully as possible and since he has been blind has done a great work at the "Lighthouse" for the blind in East 50th street, New York City—an institution built by Miss Winifred Holt, the wife of a blind man whose whole heroic life is devoted to the cause of the sightless.

Following is an extract from the article: "When we went to the Lighthouse we were told that Mr. Scandlin was at a board meeting, but in a few moments he joined us, an erect, rosy, splendidly vigorous man who made his way as confidently as we did through the maze of straightened out a matter of house business, was wanted to meet visitors, was wanted at the telephone, was wanted in his own office to meet and advise the heartless young father of a family, whose eyesight had recently been lost through a factory accident. He is president of the Blind Men's club, he superintends the census office, he makes calls upon the city's blind in their own homes, and travels all over the state in their interest, sometimes being entirely alone, on trips of several weeks' duration. He arranges for the monthly concert that is given for the blind in the King's county poorhouse, a concert, by the way, that is listened by several hundred of the city's blind, and he is not blind. He is constantly planning and experimenting, and when he talks of the great work that has already been done and the greater changes that the near future will bring for the blind, his face fairly radiates content, and you will find it hard to realize that only a few years ago he had to meet one of the heaviest blows that ever fell to the lot of man."

"Some weeks ago, in the old Lighthouse, Mr. Scandlin explained the method of writing and typewriting, and exhibited the establishment to a lady who was heart-sick over her son's impending blindness, and quite unaware that her guide could not see."

"Ah, but Mr. Scandlin!" she wailed, when she was going, "you find this work very inspiring and delightful, but you are not afflicted! You can see!"

"One may imagine the twinkle in his eyes as they met hers."

"That is very true, madam," he answered gravely, "as you say, I really know nothing of the affliction of blindness!"

SPORTING NOTES.

Callahan, the center of the Andover team showed real grit in the annual Exeter battle last Saturday. Callahan hurt his ankle during the early moments of the game and did not complain until the game was over. Andover will have a strong nucleus to start the 1914 season with, having lost but three men.

IN THE FIELD OF SPORTS

Otto Stifel of St. Louis is the party who will finance the Buffalo club of the new Federal league. Stifel is the backer of the St. Louis club in the federal league and also owns a stable of horses which operated on the Canadian race track this summer. Stifel has notified all other clubs of the Federal league that they must post $25,000 before the league season opens.

Joe Brooks of the Colgate team is one of the few players who has scored on Harvard and Yale. In 1909 while at Williams he crossed the Crimson's line and against Yale this season in the Colgate uniform he registered a touchdown.

The American polo league opened on Monday night. This league is composed of towns in Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and New York states. Many football experts are basing the poor showing of Holy Cross this fall to the unfortunate death of Belyea, the Norwich star, which occurred in the Norwich-Holy Cross game at the outset of the season. At the time many predicted that this mishap would have a demoralizing effect on the Purple.

President Navin of the Detroit club announced this week that Ty Cobb was to remain with the Tigers next season. Cobb will be given the highest salary ever received by any ball player next season, although the exact figures are not known. Cobb says that he is entirely satisfied with his condition at Detroit and will be glad to end his playing days in the Michigan city. He said that he certainly did not want to change to any other club.

Chick Gandil, the star first baseman of the Washington Senators, could not be tempted with an offer to do a vaudeville turn on the stage this winter. Gandil says that he gets enough roasts for trivial things on the ball field during the summer and thinks that he would be prone to far greater criticism on the stage.

Dartmouth succeeded in piling up the largest score against Penn since 1891 on Saturday when they amassed a total of 34. In 1891 Harvard beat Penn 48 to 0. Jim McCormick, the old Princeton warrior, who has been assisting Tad Jones at Exeter, has gone to Princeton, where he is rounding the Tiger contingent into shape for the big Yale game on Saturday.

Connie Mack, in addition to his business affairs with the Philadelphia Americans, is a bank director. Mack was chosen a director of the Tioga Trust company of Tioga, a part of Philadelphia, in which Mack resides.

Simmons, the former Highlander, led the International league in batting during the past season. He maintained an average of .329. Gilheoley, the new finance man, was second in order with .328.

Frank Cavanaugh, the Dartmouth football coach and known in private life as Attorney Cavanaugh of Worcester, Mass., has won great fame this fall as a football coach. His achievements with the Dartmouth team this season have been nothing short of marvelous in view of the light material he had on hand at the outset of the season. Not in years has pessimism reigned so high as at the start of the present season. Dartmouth followers had expected an off year. Remaining from last year's team were Hoggset, Loudon, Whitney, and Snow. With the worst of material imaginable Cavanaugh rounded into shape a team that, providing they win against Carlisle, may base claim to the inter-collegiate championship.

Cochran Haughton of the Harvard eleven has practically decided to allow Eddie Mahan to do the bulk of the punting in the two remaining games.

Edward Hanlon, the former owner of the Baltimore Orioles, is one of the leading candidates for the presidency of the Federal league.

One of the big surprises of the dying football season, although a very judicious move, is the big shift made at Harvard. Coach Haughton has changed his line-up for the two remaining games. Cowen, the guard, has been dropped. Gilman, who has played right tackle, has been shifted to left guard. Capt. Storor has taken right tackle. "Tuck" Hardwick, will cover the right wing. This move was made in view to strengthening the Crimson's weak spots. Hardwick will be no novice at end. During the 1912 season when Felton was doing the punting Hardwick was the person sent down under the punts. His tackle of Wheeler resulted in the first touchdown Harvard registered on Yale in several years.

Dr. C. J. Whelan, the old Dartmouth coach, is coming in for a great deal of praise in eastern football circles. This season Whelan has placed Tufts college on a strong footing in football ranks. Tufts record is an enviable one.

According to the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, the Dartmouth team is the strongest football eleven in the country.

Davis S. Baker, center of the University of Maine team during the past few years, has been elected captain to lead the 1914 team.

Fred Dennie, the former Brown coach, who has had charge of the football team at St. Louis university during the past few years, will not be retained any longer. Dennie's work has not been a huge success with the St. Louis aggregation.

Eddie Casey of Natick, Mass., will probably be elected captain of the Exeter team.

Gray Hair Becomes Dark, Thick, Glossy

Look Years Younger! Try Grandma's Recipe of Sage and Sulphur and Nobody Will Know.

Almost everybody knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

INTERESTING, ENTERPRISING, HELPFUL

(Established in 1824 by Samuel Bowles)

Daily (Morning), $8; Sunday, $2; Weekly, $1 a Year

A DISTINGUISHED AMERICAN EDITOR AND PUBLISHER has lately written: "I have read The Republican faithfully for nearly a week. It seems to me it is one of the most complete newspapers in the world. Your general news is first-class, likewise your editorials, and your typographical arrangement of the news in your field is simply superb."

A COMPLETE NEWSPAPER is what The Republican aims to be every day in the week and every week in the year. Its constant purpose is to enlighten and inform its readers. It has its own views on public questions and is not afraid to advocate them, but it considers that the primary function of the newspaper is to present the facts which will enable the people to reach their own conclusions. In this spirit and with this object The Republican's editorial page as well as its news columns are conducted.

THE REPUBLICAN'S NEWS SERVICE is prompt, thorough, painstaking. It spends lavishly for the news of its own field and it commands the best agencies for the general news of this and other countries. It employs able special correspondents at Boston and Washington. Its sporting news pages are particularly strong and attractive. It presents its news with intelligence, discrimination and art.

THE MAGAZINE PAGE is one of the distinctive features of The Daily Republican, appealing especially to all who are interested in literature and the arts, but embracing as well a wide variety of entertaining reading.

THE SUNDAY REPUBLICAN grows each year fuller in volume and richer in diverting, instructive and helpful features. It is, in fact, more and more a superior magazine, covering a wide range of human interests, but adapted especially to western New England tastes and interests.

THE WEEKLY REPUBLICAN carries the marked New England flavor but is an increasingly national journal in its character and in its audience. It contains the cream of the seven daily issues in news, editorial articles, special departments, literary features, etc., all carefully edited and arranged in 16 broad pages of nearly solid reading matter. It is read and highly valued throughout the United States and in many foreign countries, and it costs only ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

Specimen copies of either edition sent free on application. The Weekly Republican will be sent free for one month to anyone who wishes to try it.

All subscriptions are payable in advance. Address

Progress of the "Better Babies" Campaign.

The Woman's Home Companion carries on its campaign for "Better Babies" in the November number. No modern movement has taken such firm hold on American mothers as the movement for "Better Babies."

"Better Babies," "Better Babies" contests in forty states have been given with the Companion's cooperation in the way of cash prizes, medals, certificates of award, and most important of all, the "Better Babies" standard score card and other literature prepared for and furnished by the Companion.

As a direct result of these contests there has arisen a deluge of questions from mothers as to how children can be given the best possible start in life, physically, mentally, morally, and spiritually. These questions are to be answered in a series of authoritative articles, the first of which appears in the November number entitled "The Meaning of Motherhood," by Dr. S. Josephine Baker, director of child hygiene, department of health, New York City. On the question of preparation for motherhood, Doctor Baker says in part:

"When everything has been found to be normal, or the best possible efforts have been made to make it so, the next most important duty is that of a calm mind, cheerfulness, and a firm faith in the great joy to come. Doctor Osler, the famous physician, has said that the master word in medicine is 'equanimity.' He might have gone further and called it the master word for all of life's conduct, for never are equanimity and even judgment needed more than when a woman must consider that her mental attitude affects not only herself but another life, for the time wholly hers, to protect and guard."

"Gossip of dire forebodings and old wives' tales should never be listened to. Nine tenths of the stories of serious results are pure fiction, with no real basis of fact, however authentic they may seem or how well supported they are in details. Science has disproved utterly the theory of marks and disfigurement appearing on the baby as the result of sudden frights or horrifying experiences of the mother, but allowing the mind to dwell upon such stories may mean a lowered vitality on the part of the mother owing to the mental worry, and, consequently, a lowered vitality and a disturbed nervous system for the baby."

VANDALISM AT GETTYSBURG WILL COST NATION $7,032.

It has become known in connection with an appeal to congress for replacing and restoring them to their original condition, that nine monuments on the battlefield at Gettysburg were damaged with a chisel and hammer by an unknown vandal late in the afternoon of March 4 last, the day of the inauguration of President Wilson at Washington. It was described by Henry Breckenridge, the assistant secretary of war, as "a perfect piece of wanton vandalism." The vandal went from one monument to another until he had injured nine of them, with apparently no other motive than pure malice, as he took none of the broken pieces of the monuments away.

It will cost the federal government $7,032 to repair the damage. An appropriation of that amount was inserted by the house appropriations committee in the deficiency appropriation bill.

The monuments damaged included the Fifth Corps "marked," the 37th Massachusetts Infantry monument, and those erected for the 96th Pennsylvania Infantry, the Sixth New Jersey, the 40th New York Infantry, the Vermont Brigade, the Sixth Maine Infantry, the 39th Pennsylvania Infantry and the Fifth Wisconsin Infantry.
